

Jacob Biggs

ANALYST

Jacob Biggs is an Analyst at Bestige Holdings. In his role, Jacob supports investment thesis development, sources and evaluates potential acquisition opportunities, and conducts financial and operational due diligence. He builds detailed financial models, prepares investment memos, and assists with deal structuring, negotiations, and execution. In addition to pursuing new investments, Jacob contributes to portfolio management by analyzing company performance and collaborating with management teams to identify operational improvements and growth opportunities.

Jacob joined Bestige Holdings after prior experience as a Summer Analyst at Bestige and as a Summer Analyst at Crewe Capital, a middle-market investment bank. In these roles, he gained exposure to the full deal lifecycle, including industry research, valuation analysis, the preparation of marketing materials, and participation in client and management meetings. This experience deepened his understanding of both buy-side and sell-side processes and built the analytical and strategic skills he applies in his work as an Analyst today.

Jacob earned a Bachelor of Arts in Economics from Yale University, where he was a starting linebacker for the Varsity Football Team, earned Academic All-District honors, and was elected to the National Football Foundation Hampshire Honor Society.

Originally from Texas and Utah, Jacob is now based in Nashville, Tennessee. Outside of work, he enjoys staying active through jiu-jitsu, running, and golf.
