SENIOR FUND ACCOUNTING MANAGER, FINANCE AND FUND ACCOUNTING

Anne Crisafulli is a Senior Fund Manager at Bestige Holdings, where she oversees finance and accounting reporting for the fund and its portfolio companies. Working closely with the CFO, she manages day-to-day fund accounting and operational reporting, and supports the firm's supplemental reporting, investor support, and valuation work.

Anne brings more than six years of experience across private equity and technology consulting, with expertise spanning both fund and corporate accounting. Before joining Bestige, she was at CapitalSpring, where she supported credit and hybrid credit/buyout funds and produced detailed financial and operational reporting. She began her career at Ernst & Young, spending nearly three years working alongside technology development teams on subledger implementations with a focus on fixed income assets. Across every role, she has been driven as much by the relationships she builds as by the numbers she reports.

Originally from Bethlehem, New York, Anne holds a master's in forensic accounting and bachelor's degrees in accounting and business administration, with a concentration in finance and management, from the University at Albany, SUNY. She now lives in Nashville, where she enjoys running, reading a good book, spending time outdoors, and following thoroughbred racing.
